METHOD OF PRODUCING SIMOX WAFER

ABSTRACT

A SIMOX wafer is produced by implanting oxygen ions into a surface of a Si substrate and then conducting a high-temperature annealing, in which a SOI film having a thickness thicker than a target SOI film thickness is previously formed and a final adjustment of the SOI film thickness is carried out at an etching step arranged separately from a cleaning step.

Fig. 1