

Abstract

The present invention relates to the method for preparing batteries with high energy density. More particularly, it relates to an improved method for 5 preparing an electrode with high load energy-density metal-ion-based battery. This method comprises preparing an electrolyte-filled solid electrode by mixing a salt, a solvent, a binder, and an active material to produce a mechanically stable paste.