

ABSTRACT

The embodiments of the present application provide a terminal capability determination method and device, and a terminal. Said method comprises: a terminal sending at least one piece of capability indication information to a network, the at least one piece of capability indication information being used to indicate whether the terminal supports measurement of a first frequency layer and/or a second frequency layer and corresponding measurement result reporting.

FIG. 3