

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides a sealant composition for electronic device, in which the curing does not proceed when heated, which does not cause the problem of use in the mounting process of electronic device. The present invention relates to a sealant composition for electronic device comprising (a) a compound having two or more (meth)acryloyl groups and (c) a nitroxide compound and/or a thiocarbonylthio compound.