

ABSTRACTTHREADED JOINT WITH SHOULDER PRODUCED BY ADDITIVE MANUFACTURE

5 The invention relates to a tubular threaded joint for the drilling, the exploitation of hydrocarbon wells or the transport of oil and gas comprising a male tubular element and a female tubular element, the female tubular element comprising a female inner threaded portion and a female non-threaded portion, the male tubular element comprising a male outer threaded portion and a male non-threaded portion, characterised in that the male or female tubular element comprises
10 a body and an added portion by additive manufacturing that comprises at least one first abutment surface.

[Fig. 1]