

ABSTRACT

A cartridge includes a photosensitive member, a discharge opening for discharging a developer removed from the photosensitive member, toward a loosening member provided in the main assembly of a apparatus; a vibration
5 impacting member for imparting vibration to the loosening member. The vibration impacting member is movable between a first position for imparting the vibration to the loosening member and a second position retracted from the first position.

[Figure 1]