

Abstract

This abnormality detection device comprises: a statistical data acquisition unit which acquires statistical data on a GNSS positioning result associated with a position; a positioning result acquisition unit which acquires an actually measured positioning result that is the GNSS positioning result actually measured on the basis of a GNSS signal and includes position information; and a discerning unit which discerns abnormalities in the actually measured positioning result on the basis of the statistical data.