

Abstract

Direct Resistivity Determination

A resistivity profile can be generated directly from measured electromagnetic field data from a marine survey. A series of transformations can be applied to remove a conductivity dependency from a boundary value problem such that an inversion method may no longer be required to generate the resistivity profile.

Fig. 5