

ABSTRACT

ARTICLE TRANSPORT FACILITY

An article transport facility includes a support member capable of supporting a second support component from below while allowing a vertical movement of a first support component with respect to the second support component, in a projected state in which the second support component is located in a projected position. The support member is supported directly or indirectly by a ceiling.

[Fig. 4]