Abstract

Through a production process according to the following reaction scheme, compounds (2) which are useful for antibacterial agents can be provided at low cost and high yield.

