IMPROVED METHOD FOR FORMING STACKED POLYSILICON CONTACTS

ABSTRACT

An improved and new method for forming stacked polysilicon contacts for use in multilevel conducting interconnection wiring in semiconductor integrated circuits has been developed. The polysilicon contacts are self-aligned between wiring levels and the fabrication process results in a substantially planar top insulating layer surface.

(FIGURE 1 IS SUGGESTED FOR PUBLICATION)