

METHOD FOR PREDICTING EFFICACY OF DRUGS IN A PATIENT

The present invention concerns a method for predicting the relative efficacy of a plurality of drugs for treating a tumour in an individual comprising the molecular characterization of the 5 tumour, and the calculation of a score for the plurality of drugs essentially based on the percentage of deregulated target gene.

(No suitable picture figure)