ABSTRACT

USE OF CYTOTOXIC SUBSTANCES

A cytotoxic agent, when formulated in a low density lipoprotein, is useful for treating cancers, particularly leukaemias and lymphomas, since the lipoprotein enhances the activity of the cytotoxic agent. It is particularly useful for cancers which are resistant to the cytotoxic drug when administered without LDL and for the administration of drugs which are insoluble in non-toxic solvents.

Figure 1