

ABSTRACT

Noodles according to the present invention are made from a raw material composition comprising wheat flour and a milk protein-containing raw material. A milk protein content of the milk protein-containing raw material is not less than 80% by mass on a solid content basis, and at least 60% by mass of the milk protein is micellar casein.