Box III Text of the abstract

A method and system for maintaining equipment in large-scale technical installations or production facilities, comprising providing a data processing system that stores records of equipment units identified by equipment identifiers, generating a template that related to a pending maintenance, conducting maintenance according to the template, marking the template with result codes which are automatically evaluated by the data processing system, and transmitting the template with the result codes to the data processing system.