ABSTRACT

A method for transmitting system information includes dividing, by a network device, target system information into a plurality of segments; and sending, by the network device, the plurality of segments to a terminal device.

FIG. 2