ABSTRACT

APPARATUS AND METHOD FOR ENCRYPTION

Disclosed are an encryption apparatus and method. The encryption apparatus includes a storage configured to store a static key table, and at least one processor configured to implement an authenticator configured to perform authentication with an external apparatus and acquire authentication information and a key table generator configured to generate a dynamic key table using authentication information acquired through the authentication.

FIG. 1