

ABSTRACT

A method for controlling a logistics robot operating within a preset operation boundary includes: a step of generating state information including at least one of information about the number of occupancies of the logistics robot in a predetermined area within the operation boundary and information about a process state within the operation boundary; and a step of determining whether to change an attribute of a movement area for the logistics robot according to the state information.

FIG. 7