

ABSTRACT

A laminate capable of contributing to significant energy saving is provided, which includes a honeycomb structure layer having a plurality of cells; and a heat storage layer provided on at least one side of the honeycomb structure layer, wherein at least a void is present in the cells of the honeycomb structure layer.