THIS SHEET HAS BEEN REPLACED

A B S T R A C T

Wellhead equipment is disclosed as comprising a housing including a main body of a first material having an internal cavity thereabout and a weld body of a material having a considerably greater yield strength than that of the main body formed integrally with the main body within the cavity to provide an upwardly facing seat in the housing bore, and a hanger including a main body and a ring of a material having a considerably greater yield strength than that of the main body and carried by the main body in a position to provide a downwardly facing shoulder engageable with the seat to support the load of the hanger therefrom.

This Sheet Has Been Replaced

