

COMPOSITIONS AND METHODS FOR DETECTING A BIOLOGICAL CONTAMINANT

Abstract

Provided are compositions and methods useful to the determination of whether a microbial contaminant is present in a biological therapeutic production process. Specifically, an artificial positive amplification control plasmid and unique quantitative PCR detection probe are provided, which enables the rapid and real-time detection of a false positive result.

[No Figure]