

ABSTRACT

The present disclosure relates to a communication method, a communication device, and a storage medium. In the communication method, a first decoding mode of downlink control information is determined, wherein the downlink control information is downlink control information received on one or more candidate physical downlink control channels using one or more beam directions. According to the present disclosure, the success rate of receiving and decoding the downlink control information is increased.

Fig. 2