

Abstract

The present invention relates to agents and processes for the low germ production of microbiologically stabilised beer.