ABSTRACT

The present application relates to a method for preventing a false triggering of a live streaming risk control, a device, and a product, the method includes responding to an instruction of starting a virtual live streaming, starting an e-commerce live streaming room on an e-commerce platform; obtaining a speech list from a speech server, the speech list including speech texts corresponding to business links of a same live streaming business process; generating a portrait oral video corresponding to each of the speech texts based on a template video, the template video having a preset required duration, and each image frame of the template video comprising a facial image collected based on a same person; implementing a virtual live streaming activity by pushing the portrait oral video corresponding to each speech text to the e-commerce live streaming room, according to the live streaming business process.