

CONDITIONS FOR APPLICABILITY OF CROSS-COMPONENT CODING

ABSTRACT

A method for visual media processing, comprising: using a rule that specifies representing, based on a fixed value, a chroma residual scaling factor for at least one chroma block associated with a current video unit of visual media data, wherein the fixed value is based at least on one or more conditions; and performing a conversion between the current video unit and a bitstream representation of the current video unit.

FIG. 13