

【ABSTRACT】

The present disclosure relates to a thermally insulated tank for storing liquefied gas including: a first shell for accommodating liquefied gas therein; a second shell disposed outside the first shell; and an insulating space disposed between the first shell and the second shell, wherein the insulating space is filled with an insulator and a low vacuum may be formed therein.

FIG. 25