

K. Abstract:

Compositions comprising an active agent and a decoy molecule and methods for treating pain by topically administering such compositions are described herein. The compositions may be powdered. Compositions include a decoy molecule with a specified average molecular weight and no high molecular weight decoy molecule. The extracellular components include hyaluronic acid, collagen, fibronectin, elastin, lectin, and fragments thereof and combinations thereof.