

ABSTRACT

According to the embodiments of the disclosure, a method, an apparatus, a device, a storage medium and a program product for interaction are provided. The method includes: presenting an interactive interface element in a user interface, the interactive interface element including a first element and a second element, an appearance style of the first element being determined based on a type of a virtual resource corresponding to an interaction task, and presented content of the second element including an identification of the virtual resource; and updating the interactive interface element in response to a change in completion progress of the interaction task.