

ABSTRACT
SILICA MICROCAPSULES

The present invention relates to silica microcapsules, each of which includes a shell, and a core containing one or more organic compounds inside the shell, a softener composition containing the silica microcapsules, and a method of producing the silica microcapsules. In the silica microcapsules, the shell contains silica as a constituent component, and the organic compound contains a primary alcohol.