ABSTRACT

The present invention provides certain improved formulations of proteins. Specifically, the present invention provides use of certain excipients that are useful for stabilization of antibody preparations. Additionally, the novel formulation of the present invention prevents the formation of aggregates or fragments or modification of protein in solution.

(No suitable figure)