

METHOD FOR PURIFYING RECOMBINANT PROTEIN

ABSTRACT

Disclosed is a method for purifying a recombinant protein, in particular recombinant human albumin. The method comprises: (a) adding aminoguanidine and a medium-long chain fatty acid to a sample containing a recombinant protein; and (b) performing chromatography on the resulting sample. The chromatography is optionally performed with a chromatography buffer containing aminoguanidine.

FIG. 1