

A DIFFERENTIATED CASINO GAME KNOWN AS “SUPER COLOR SIC BO”

DESCRIPTION

5 Field of Invention

The present invention relates to a differentiated casino game that has different colours for the numbers on three colour dices, Chinese Zodiac Characters (“CZC”) or Western Zodiac Characters (“WZC”). In particular, in a preferred embodiment, the present invention relates to a new method of playing game using three (3) colour dices and each dice with 12 faces with specific numbers with specific coloured backgrounds; CZC or WZC. The present invention is a variant of the Chinese casino game that has various names as Sic Bo, Tai Sai, Dai Siu, Big and Small, Hi-Lo. There is also the English variant of the Chinese casino game known as Grand Hazard and Chuck-a-luck. The game may also be played at a table in different venues including but not limited to casinos and other venues and also virtual tables through the internet including social network platforms that may be accessed via the internet or other communication networks with third parties. The game has entertainment value. In addition, the game may also be played in variety of ways, on information storage devices including but not limited to the CDs (C-ROMs), video compact disc (video discs), interactive CDs (CD-Is), on stand-alone machines similar to slot machines and on wireless devices including but not limited to mobile phones. The present invention relates to a differentiated casino game for playing with dices that have different colours for the numbers and also a method for operating an online gaming environment for conducting the differentiated game through various communications media available in the market.

Background

The Chinese casino game like Sic Bo is popular in Asian casinos but are also played in American and English casinos. Sic Bo is played by the roll of a dice with various betting options with the player placing his bets on the various options available to him. The Dealer will then roll and shake a transparent box (also known as “SCS shaker”) containing three (3) dices and then stops the rolling and shaking to produce the combination. The dealer will pay the winning betting combination and takes all losing bets. There are many variations of the game but, the player has an option to bet on various possibilities of the outcome. There are various methods of playing the Sic Bo game, in particular there are regional variations of the rules in Asia. There are fairly standard rules about how the dices are drawn and the order of dealing and playing.

- 5 While the basic game-play is more or less the same throughout Sic Bo, the greatest divergence between variations lies in the betting options. Like the game play, there is a generalized system of betting options but none has the coloured specific numbers as the present invention on dice in colours on a new chart with which gives the players a differentiated game for playing the game.

Detailed Description of The Preferred Embodiments

25 Figures 1(a) and (b) shows conventional Sic Bo. The present invention adopts the use of a mechanical vibration shaker with coloured numbered dices. In a preferred embodiment, the present invention is played on a chart with coloured device. Further unlike the convention Sic Bo game, the Super Color Sic Bo game chart in the present invention besides introduction of colours, there is also Chinese and Western

The method for operating an online gaming environment comprises (a) hosting a game for any number of players, the game being conducted within the online gaming environment; and (b) conducting the 20 game in accordance with the method described above.

In a still alternative embodiment, the present invention may be a kit of parts comprising the three dices and each dice with 12 faces (1 to 12) as in Figure 3, a SCS shaker in Figure 2 and a chart as in Figures 1(a) and (b) and a set of instructions for 25 playing the game as described in this document.

The online gaming environment provides for players to log onto the system to play the game. The environment provides virtual game table or rooms that can accommodate many players. As described above, there is no minimum number of 30 players to start a game.

The online gaming environment may be organised in a way that is known by a skilled 35 person in the art. The environment may be wired or wireless and comprises a network server for communicating with devices (e.g. computers) used by players for playing the game, and a user interface at these devices. The network server may store players' personal account particulars such as user IDs and passwords, and also accept payment. Each player will have to log onto the system in order to play the game. The players themselves may select the tables at which they wish to play the game.

- 5 The "dealer" will then start the game by starting the operation of the SCS shaker which will allow the SCS shaker to bounce the 3 dices for more than three (3) bounces.
