

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A contract information reference device for an operating state of a building facility includes: a data reference application processing unit that receives a data reference application when reference to data of another client in the same building is desired, notifies a client operation terminal of an application destination client user of an application, and processes a procedure for the application destination client user to permit or reject; and an application status management DB that integrates client data of an application destination and an applicant and stores and manages an application procedure status in order for the applicant client user to refer to information on the application destination client when the application destination client user permits the application for data reference.
