ABSTRACT

Embodiments of the present disclosure disclose a method and an apparatus for measuring sidelink reference signal received power, and a communications device. The method for measuring sidelink reference signal received power is applied to a terminal and includes: determining a measurement port for a sidelink reference signal; and obtaining reference signal received power based on the determined measurement port.

Figure 2 accompanies.