

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A video processing apparatus that processes a video of a moving body captured by a camera is configured to sample frames output from the camera at a predetermined rate, calculate a direction of motion of the moving body based on a sequence of a plurality of the frames, and extract a feature amount of the video by performing convolution processing together on the plurality of the frames based on the calculated direction.

FIG. 2