Abstract

Composition of a pharmaceutically active substance and application device

The invention relates to an improved pharmaceutical substance as well as to an improved application device which is suitable for a more effective nasal administration of a substance.