

ABSTRACT

A method for wireless communication and a network device. The method comprises: a first network device receiving a first message sent by a query device, the first message comprising first region information and used to request to query terminals in a first region indicated by the first region information; and the first network device sending a list of target terminals in the first region to the query device.

FIG. 3