ABSTRACT

A method for selecting a destination address in a sidelink is performed by a terminal and includes: determining a discontinuous reception (DRX) parameter and a DRX state of a destination address corresponding to a logical channel, in which data to be transmitted is configured to transmit on the logical channel; and selecting, on the basis of the DRX parameter, the DRX state and a logical channel priority of the logical channel, a destination address configured to transmit the data to be transmitted.

Figure 5