Abstract

The present invention allows a master information processing apparatus to settle accounts on behalf of other information processing apparatuses connected to the master information processing apparatus. Instead of a receiver that cannot settle accounts, a receiver 51 settles the amount charged to the receiver 201.