

ABSTRACT

Methods, non-transitory computer-implemented methods and systems for identifying compound heterozygous mutations (CHMs) and de novo mutations (DNMs) in populations are provided. Also provided are methods for phasing genetic variants in a population by leveraging the population's relatedness. Further provided is a prediction model of relatedness in a human population.

[Figure 1]