

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention discloses a method for real and virtual combined positioning, it not only sends positioning information to the server through the electronic device for tracking the positioning of the electronic device, but also further captures external scene image and scene sound through the electronic device, or the server generates corresponding scene image and scene sound based on the positioning information, further used to confirm the positioning of electronic device.