

Abstract

In layers of films of chiral liquid crystalline side-chain polymers 5 (3), as are used, for example, for optical filters or retarders, the hitherto unavoidable interfering faulty inclinations are eliminated by subjecting the layer of chiral liquid crystalline side-chain polymer in its cholesteric phase to an electric field directed at right angles to the layer.

This Sheet Has Been Replaced

