

ABSTRACT

The embodiments of the application disclose a channel monitoring method and apparatus, a terminal device and a network device. The method comprises: a terminal device receiving first search space configuration information and second search space configuration information which are sent by a network device; and the terminal device determining, on the basis of a first timer and/or first control information, to perform downlink control channel monitoring on the basis of the first search space configuration information or the second search space configuration information.

FIG. 2