

IMPROVEMENTS TO USER INTERFACE FOR PROVIDING CALENDAR INFORMATION AND TASK MANAGEMENT

Abstract

The present invention generally relates to an improved user interface for providing calendar information and task management in an event listing website. However, this invention is not subjected to only event listing website but any software or website that can be added into as improvements.

A function of expanding the monthly calendar to provide more information. The presentation of this additional information can be viewed by week or day (grid or list format). This function can be used in addition to other software functionality or user interfaces displayed on a user's computer display screen according to other software applications or other software functionality in use.

A function of expanding the event listings in the list format to provide more information. User can have the option of expanding all the events listings at the same time or based on his selections. This will provide user with a summarized list of events. If user prefer to see this list of events with pictures, they are able to do so too.

A function of combining a few buttons' functions into a button but at the same time maintaining the flexibility of choosing individual button's function.
