

ABSTRACT

The passenger conveyer is provided, which can reduce occurrence of the falling down accidents of passengers, even if a braking system is suddenly operated at the emergency time. When a braking means for stopping operation of the passenger conveyer is operated, the passengers are noticed of abnormality at the initial time of operation of braking by providing means for applying the braking force over plural times during a braking process, in which the force of the second time of braking and the following is made larger than that of the first time.