

ABSTRACT

An extrusion-based layer deposition system may use extrude build material prior to starting a three-dimensional fabrication or when changing
5 building material. The present invention relates to method priming a build material prior to and during three-dimensional fabrication.