ABTRACT

The invention relates to variants of a DNA polymerase of the polX family capable of synthesizing a nucleic acid molecule without a template strand, or of a functional fragment of such a polymerase, comprising at least one mutation of a residue in at least one specific position, and to uses of said variants, in particular for the synthesis of nucleic acid molecules comprising 3'-OH modified nucleotides.