ABSTRACT

A method for managing changed financial data includes reading a financial data from a storage unit and providing a financial screen according to the financial data. The financial data includes established contents of a plurality of items and a changed content of one or more items, and the financial screen includes fields of the items. The providing step includes: representing each changed content in the corresponding field, representing the established contents of the remaining items in the corresponding fields, and setting a color mark for the field that represents the changed content.

Figure 5