

Abstract

This water supply device (100), having an additive liquid holding part (104) and an additive liquid supply means (10), comprises a detector (108) which detects water circulation inside a flow passage, wherein when the detector has detected water flow, an additive liquid is added into the flow passage from the supply means.