

RAN 4701/153

5

Abstract

By combination of a hybrid layer consisting of an orienting layer and a layer of a cross-linked liquid crystalline monomer with a reflector and by appropriate local structuring of the molecule orientation an optical pattern is obtained which cannot be copied in conventional photocopiers. This pattern is useful as means for protecting documents, banknotes etc. from being copied.

---

This Sheet Has Been Replaced

